

Ion Sebastian CEPTUREANU (PhD, associate professor, male) holds a PhD in Management from The Bucharest University of Economic Studies and is a PhD supervisor within the same university. He was a post-doctoral student in a joint program between The Bucharest university of Economic Studies and Anglia Ruskin University, U.K. Currently an Associate Professor, Sebastian area of expertise includes Management, with research on development of organizational capabilities, knowledge management, entrepreneurship and cooperation (8 papers); and Environmental science, with research focused on organizational sustainability, sustainable entrepreneurship and circular economy (5 papers). At the same time, Sebastian was involved in the last 10 years in 18 research projects and in 11 other projects as a project manager or researcher. In terms of scientific recognition, he has a h-index of 5 in Clarivate and 7 in Scopus databases. Sebastian is a reviewer for Environment and Planning A, Sustainability and Administrative Sciences journals, is a member of scientific board for Journal of Applied Quantitative Methods and member in scientific committees for IBIMA International Conferences series (25-31 editions) and International Management Conferences series (3 editions).